LABOR DAY CELEBRATION

NEXT week occurs the holiday consecrated to labor and industry which from the earliest days of the camp has been observed with almost as much ceremony as the national anniversary. So far nothing has been done in the way of arranging a public demonstration and, unless action is taken within the next few days, the event will pass down into history as a blank. The holiday is not a holiday unless the men who are interested in holding up the advantages of organized labor choose to make something of the day that was expressly set apart at the urgent solicitation of the American Federation of Labor for the working forces to show their strength. That the day will be observed as a holiday goes without saying, as it stands on the statute books of Nevada as a non-judicial day and bank holiday, when business halts in obedience to the will of the sovereign people. It is up to the committee which made such an unqualified success of the Fourth of July program to declare if the members are willing to don their digging clothes once more in an effort to furnish entertainment for those who, otherwise, will be without anything to distinguish between the holiday and any ordinary working day except the loss of time.

If anything is to be done the men at the head of affairs, for it is always the same old crowd of live boosters on whom the camp has to rely, should get together and resolve what is to be done.

Let this be the Jim Butler day of Tonopah. The date when Jim filed his first claim for record was the 26th day of August and a public celebration of that event was postponed in deference to the proximity of Labor day. Therefore, in arranging the program the committee should bear this fact in mind and try to have the father of Tonopah, and Mrs. Jim Butler, also, present as the guests of the camp.

WHERE RENO WAS WRONG

THE only criticism of the Hughes reception at Reno was the suggestion that the burg would have shown more delicacy and a better sense of the eternal fitness of things had it omitted the cowboy feature from the street parade. Up to date there has not been any explanation of the reason for inviting this display, which is as foreign to the real character of the pretty metropolis as the spectacle of a four in hand stagecoach with outriders and perked passengers transferred from the medieval pages of history. Reno has sufficient attractions and merits to distinguish it from the frontier without having recourse to the outlived type of cowboy embellishment. That is well enough for Cheyenne, where there is nothing else to distinguish it from the neighboring farm communities, but for Reno, the classic home of the State University, enshrined in artistic setting and filled with the homes of a cultured and aesthetic people, the management of the celebration might have found something more apropos to appeal to the special train of eastern correspondents. To stamp Reno as the home of the cowboy is in as bad taste as to brand it as the haven of oppressed conjugality. Cheyenne perpetuates Frontier day for the reason that she cannot divest herself of the distinctive features of ranch life. Cheyenne is essentially a cow town, for it is the banking center for a cattle and sheep industry that extends from Nebraska to Utah, but since the development of the oil industry the citizens of Wyoming have striven to dispense with the annual orgie known as Frontier day. If the wishes of the better class of citizens and business men were consulted there would be no longer a date set apart for the incursions of thugs who gather from as far east as Chicago to prey on the thousands who spend a couple of days in the town that once was hailed as the wickedest place in creation. Wickedness may be all right as an asset when a town is in the making, but after the advent of schools, churches and colleges it is customary to relegate the vicious elements in an impounded quarter where their excesses will not corrupt the rising generation.

DEMOCRATIC SENATORS CRAWL

CRINGING under the White House lash, the Democratic senators who on Monday disobeyed President Wilson's mandate and voted to take up the immigration bill hastily crawled on Tuesday. They did not dare to face the executive wrath and supinely yielded when they heard the crack of the White House whip. Republican senators demanded to know if they feared to "put the president in a hole" and asked what had occasioned the sudden change of of mind exhibited by their Democratic colleagues, but they got only evasive answers. Never before was there presented so remarkable a spectacle of subservieny as is shown by Democratic senators and representatives. In private conversation they exhibited great bitterness, charging that they are treated with contempt, never consulted and merely ordered about. They insist, even, that all the Democratic campaign machinery is being devoted to the single purpose of effecting the re-election of Woodrow Wilson and that the interests of senators and representatives are being shamefully neglected, but they give evidence of abject fear when it is suggested that they talk for publication and in public they are as supine and tractable as a thrice thrashed cur.

NEVADA PYTHIANS TO MEET IN RENO

GRAND LODGE SESSION BEGINS
SEPTEMBER 21; PYTHIAN SISTERS HAVE TEAM

The Knights of Pythias and Pythian Sisters lodges of Reno are making extensive preparations for entertaining delegates from all parts of the state at the session of the grand lodge of Nevada, which convenes here on Sept. 21, says the Reno Gazette. The session will last three days and aside from the grand lodge meeting there will be a military ball and competitive drill between teams from several of the Nevada lodges.

For the first time in the history of the Pythians in Nevada and possibly in the United States, a drill team from the Pythian Sisters will compete for the $250 in prizes in the drilling contest. Twenty-one members of Calanthe temple of Reno are drilling regularly twice a week under the direction of Dr. C. O. Gasho and will enter their team in the competitive work. Dr. Gasho originated the plan of having the Pythian Sisters drill and he says his team is going to win the prize. The plan has been kept secret for the past two months, but now that the team is in good condition for the meeting and has had two months of strenuous drilling, the plan has been made public and the other lodges in the state told about it.

The regulation United States army drill in the school of the soldier, school of the squad and company is used in the drill work.

Cyprus lodge, Knights of Pythias, of Ely, have a degree team that will put on the amplified first rank during the session and the drill team from Amity lodge, of Reno, will put on the amplified third rank.

The session of the grand lodge will be concluded with a joint banquet in which the Knights of Pythias, Pythian Sisters and the D. O. K. K. will take part.
